Orientation for New Students

Since Library orientation for new students was shorter than originally planned, those students are encouraged to schedule a more thorough orientation. Contact the Library at 903-877-2864, or email library@uthct.edu (Library, Library in the Outlook global directory) to make an appointment for yourself or for a small group. Also feel free to stop by or send us questions about our resources and services. An online orientation is also in the works, and that will be publicized when it is ready. Online training opportunities are also under development, and in-person search workshops will be scheduled soon.

EBSCOhost Databases

The Library provides access to a number of EBSCOhost databases that may be useful if you are looking for articles on psychology or health care business. Key EBSCOhost databases are linked directly from the Library's landing page (<https://www.uthct.edu/library>). Others are linked from the Databases page and the Databases by Subject page that are listed on the landing page. EBSCOhost databases to consider are:

- Academic Search Complete
- Business Source Complete
- PsycInfo
- Psychology & Behavioral

Sciences Collection

These databases are available anywhere on campus and are also accessible off-campus to authorized users via the VMware VDI (Virtual Desktop Infrastructure).

National Medical Librarians Month

October is National Medical Librarians Month. The Library, originally founded in the late 1970's, was dedicated in honor of benefactor Watson W. Wise in 1984. Reading rooms were subsequently named for Mrs. Emma Wise and for Mrs. Lorene Zager, both of whom made substantial contributions to the Library. The Wise Foundation continues to provide valuable support.

We are now in our fourth major location. The Library once had less than 500 journal subscriptions, all in printed form. But modern technology and cooperative acquisitions with UT and other Texas libraries now give us (and you) access to over 5,000 electronic journals in the health and biomedical sciences and over 3,000 e-books. The Library remains the only specialized medical library in East Texas.

Both Library staff are graduates of accredited library science master's programs and have 50 years of combined library experience.

Camp Fannin Mystery

One of the unanswered questions about Camp Fannin has been "What happened to the tanks?". Several years ago, remnants of two WWII-era M-3 Medium Lee tanks were found virtually buried on nearby property that then belonged to Triton Energy. One or both of the tanks were dug up. The only one that had some intact structure was painted and displayed at the Triton offices at East Texas Center, though major parts such as the upper turret were missing. Recent statements from an eye-witness say that the tank was loaded on a flatcar and hauled away when Triton vacated the area. However, the ultimate fate of the tank is still unknown to us.

Thank You

The Library appreciates the support of the following:

- Dr. Kirk Calhoun, President
- Cindy Smith, NETnet
- John Anderson, former Director of Development and former Executive Director of the Camp Fannin Association
- Office of Institutional Advancement
- Cara Wreyford and Jared Seigler, Human Resources
- University Police
