Library Re-Opening

The Library has re-opened as of Nov. 2. When books and other materials have been returned, they will be quarantined for three days. This practice may also apply to anything that is pulled from a shelf, as normal disinfection methods may damage books and other items.

Please wear a mask properly at all times and in any area of the Library. Thank you for your cooperation.

Library staff will periodically wipe down or spray tables, worktops, keyboards, and other equipment.

For your convenience, a hand sanitizer dispenser is located just outside the Library entrance.

Donated pens and/or pencils will be available while supplies last as mentioned later in this newsletter. Please do not return them.

There are power door buttons inside and outside the Library entrance/exit. Use an elbow to avoid touching with hands.

Study areas have limited seating. The smaller tables and workstations in the public areas are limited to one person.

The private study rooms are limited to two, no matter how many chairs are present. Social distancing should be observed in all areas of the Library.

Cell phone conversations will now be allowed in the Library, as the public phones have been stored for infection control purposes.

Library Landing Page

The links under Resources on the Library's main web page (<https://www.uthct.edu/library>) have been alphabetized. Also, a link to Psychiatryonline has been added to enhance accessibility.

Requesting Journal Articles

When requesting journal articles from the Library, please include all available citation information. Library staff can work with partial information, but please provide full information if you have it, not just a PMID or a DOI. Your cooperation is appreciated.

Free Pens

As an infection prevention measure, the Library is providing free pens for Library use while supplies last. They are located on the cabinet to the left of the printer. Please take just one and don't return it.
